NOB AROUSED BY TRIPLE SLAYING
Public indignation was so aroused by the slaying of three small girls of Inglewood, California, that police had difficulty restraining a crowd which milled around the jail, above, as they questioned several suspects regarding the case.

ELIZABETH TRIMS A COURTIER'S BEARD
An amusing episode in the Pageant of Surrey being performed this summer as an aid to hospital charities. Elizabeth of York is helping a courtier to make up for his part in the pageant by trimming his beard.

LONDON'S PHANTOM POLICE
Scotland Yard's new big radio station at West Wickham, Kent, is in constant touch with the information room of the "Yard" and controls police movements so rapidly that they are being referred to as the "phantom police force." This is an exterior view of the station.

CHIEF TELLS OF FATAL RIOTING
When John Pendergast, chief of Chicago's uniformed police, took the stand at the Senate civil liberties committee to testify concerning the steel strike clash on Memorial Day, resulting in the deaths of ten strikers and the wounding of 50 others, he said the department admitted one of three high police officials who are being sued for $30,000 in a joint suit filed by families of three of those fatally wounded, claimed the police acted in self-defense.

SCENE OF RUSSO-JAP TENSION
The clash between Japan and Russia which threatened to break out into open warfare has been smoothed over and territorial disputes have been settled. This map shows the location of the two clashes which occurred at Blagovestchensk and Khabarovsk on the Amur River.

Provincial . . .

A few men on the bank, so that they could be identified in the live. There was real excitement in the live when the last detachment arrived and put on a honey dance, by which they announced the good things. They seemed to say by their actions: "We have gotten our dividends. We have found the mother-lode. We have struck oil. Come, brethren, come to the Promised Land."

The bees understood the significance of the dance and it seemed as though the whole colony had left the land of Egypt and landed around the bees. Mr. Hillier explained that bees never get excited over the first report of a "strike," but when the "strike" is verified they lose no time in swarming on the claim.

The queen with her retinue of attendants was shown in several situations.

Those who do not know of a bee colony is a real queen, functioning in very much the same way that the monarchs of England did during the Stuart period, when the king ruled by right or at least claimed he did—and strange part of it is that he never questioned the royal claim. A queen bee is never questioned. However, it is never questioned in falter to the queen who does not use her despotic position to lord it over the hive, but shoulders her responsibility and is the hardest worker in the colony.

Another highlight in the picture was the battle to the right between two queens. It was a royal battle. There was no reference in the picture to Marquis of Queensbury rules. No timekeeper. There were no seconds, but there were several workers bees watching the conflict, ready to carry out the body of the fallen queen. The conflict was far from being a "hot" fight. There were no light slaps. It was a knock-down and drag-out affair. Everything went.

The workers knew that either of their queens must die, for it is the law of the bee world.

Another part of the picture which created more than ordinary interest was the defense of the hive against a large humble bee and a hornet. The guards immediately did battle and finding that they could not successfully handle the situation, they sent out an SOS for reinforcements and in a few seconds the reserves arrived and the battle was on. One could almost see written over the entrance of the hive the words: "They shall not pass." And they didn't.

Prior to the showing of the picture Mr. Hillier gave a brief address. Bees, he said, are a very old family. First record of them was found in carvings in a cave in Spain.

Following the discovery of the sugar beet and sugar cane, apiculturists said that since that time honey, which is the natural food for human beings, was to some extent displaced by these products.

Bees, he said, in gathering nectar only visit one variety of flower on each trip. In referring to the usefulness of bees in plant life, Mr. Hillier stated that:

HUALLEN NEWS

RUSSELL-HOPPS

HUALLEN, July 14.—A very popular wedding was celebrated at HualLEN, Alberta, on June 30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hoppes when their daughter, Eva Florence, was wedded to the bridegroom, William Russell, well-known Mountain Trail district farmer.

Arranged in a white silk dress with white gloves and white shoes, the bride looked lovely carrying a bouquet of lavender and white flowers. The Rev. T. J. Jones presided over the ceremony and the bride's sister, Miss Ethel Hoppes, acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Russell's sister supported the groom. Only relatives and a few close friends to the number of sixteen sat down to supper at the conclusion of the ceremony. Prior to their departure for the North the newlyweds were entertained at a large community social and shower at Meadok.

On behalf of the community we offer to the newlywed couple our best wishes for their future happiness.

The dance at the hall last Friday night was a very successful one. The floor was a trifle sticky. The music supplied by the Wendley Vagabonds was all that was needed.

THIS WEEK'S BIG EVENT

The Grand Old Time Dance is to be held at the young people of the district, who have been planning it for some time.

Bill Johnson's Orchestra of HualLEN, who have not heard Bill's orchestra for a long time, will be on hand to play a variety of music.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hoppes returned to their farm after spending several years at the University of Alberta.

Mrs. H. Polley is spending a few days with Mrs. H. Silvestro.
